Well - looks like July or August of 1972.

At 01:43 PM 5/6/2006, you wrote:

I've never heard of an audio version of the movie. There was a book which came out a couple of years ago by the same name, but it was really just a collection of some of the short stories Shepherd wrote for his other books. The audio book version of that was narrated by Dick Cavett. It was not a big seller. You should be able to get it at any book store.

Do you have an exact date on the Drexel appearance?

I have some B/W photos of Shep when he did a concert at Drexel University in the 1970's. When I get into my new house I'll scan a few and e-mail 'em.

A good friend is looking for an audio version of A Christmas Story.... She said she had it on tape and the tape finally just wore out.... Any chance anybody has it?
